EDITOR'S COMMENTS

Hello and welcome to the November newsletter. We have a full programme of talks this month which will include a full week of on-line talks. More details in the Events/Talk section.

The 11th November is Armistice Day and I have put together a short list of books available from our bookshop which some of our members may find interesting.

As usual our volunteers have been very busy and this month sees the first entries giving details contained in the Manchester Corporation Transport Staff records.

Archives+ have provided an article looking at the history of Manchester Victoria Baths.

As always I have appended the FHF newsletter for October.

I have been asked to remind members to update your address, phone number etc. Failure to do so will mean that you will cease to receive information from the society via email. More details will be in the next edition of the journal.

Best wishes
Barry Henshall

A MESSAGE FROM OUR CHAIRMAN

The Year To Date

Hello again fellow members, at this time of year in northern England, when the nights draw in and Halloween and Bonfire Night both beckon, my thoughts turn to the achievements the Society can claim for the year 2023. Those achievements are really those of our posse of volunteers, in Manchester, our branches and often at home elsewhere in the world.

My trawl of achievements will feature ultimately in the Trustees Annual Report filed with the Charity Commission and my Chairman's Annual Report submitted to members at the Annual General Meeting. Every year they fortify the massive contribution the Society makes to the world of Family History research and to the local communities and generations of folk who hail from Greater Manchester.

So, what can we claim this year?

The Public Face

I begin with the helpdesk services we provide in Central Library and at the branches. This is the public-facing view of the Society and never fails to draw compliments from those who gain from the guidance it offers as well as our Archives+ partners. This year is no exception. Despite operating often with reduced numbers because of illness and holidays, our daily teams in Manchester and elsewhere continue to provide unequalled research help to more than 4,000 visitors during the year.

Preservation of Records

Not to be outdone, our project work, often unnoticed, sees the completion of a number of long-term projects [Baguley Sanatorium Admissions, Victoria Station War Memorial for example], the beginning of several more [Horwich Locomotive Works Staff Record Cards, Manchester City Transport Staff Records], as well as the continuance of many ongoing projects [Lancashire BMD in its many guises, Manchester Catholic Registers, Bolton Workhouse Admissions, Godfrey Maps Index for example]. In this way our volunteers fulfil our twin charitable aims to promote the study of British family history and preserve archived material. In making many of our records available to the public as well as sharing the results with our Archive partners and other organisations, we also fulfil our public benefit obligation required as a registered charity.

Education

Our programme of meetings throughout the year continues to attract both members and visitors to all our venues as well as welcoming many from outside the Greater Manchester boundary including members overseas via online links. This year, alongside our Quarterly and Branch meetings, we have begun a new programme of talks under the banner of Explore. This initiative is intended to provide guidance to both the novice as well as the more skilled researcher.

Engagement with the Public

Our annual family and local history fair is now an established date in our calendar when we invite many local organisations to exhibit alongside us as we play host to many visitors to Manchester Central Library. We carry our message beyond our venues, too. Our Promotions team provides a healthy programme of visits to outside communities and organisations. This takes the form of hosting stands at fairs held elsewhere in the North of England engaging with the public in Salford, Buxton and Huddersfield for example.

Back Office

None of the above would be possible without the work of our administration volunteers who maintain the services essential to an efficient society. Thus, we operate a first-class office facility for handling correspondence, finance, publications, book shop, member forum and website.

Our Volunteer Contribution

I could expand on the above, but you get the picture, I'm sure. We are active in many different ways bringing the skills and techniques of family history research and the need to preserve and use archival material to the full to both members and the wider public. We cannot do this without our willing volunteer members. Each of them deserves the gratitude of trustees and members alike for her or his contribution to the continuing development of your society as it awaits the onset of its 60th anniversary in 2024.

Want To Volunteer?

If you would like to offer your services as a volunteer, whether in person at one or other of our venues or from home via an online link, please contact our office, preferably at our email address – office@mlfhs.org.uk and your message will be passed on to an appropriate activity manager who will respond.

Best wishes in all your research,

David Muil

A MESSAGE FROM OUR GENERAL SECRETARY

The best and quickest way to contact the society is by emailing office@mlfhs.org.uk we will then direct you to the relevant person to help you. Our phone is very rarely used.

If possible please use the on-line option on our new website to join or renew your subscription. We use Stripe but you can pay as a guest with your card if you wish.

Have you considered taking out a Bank Standing Order? It means you don't have to think about renewing and you can stop it at any time. Always include your membership number. We can always find it for you should you forget.

There is so much you can learn from our website it seems a shame that members don't make the most of it. From the members area on the website you can make changes to your address and email just log in. It is so easy.

We recently held a talk on how to get the best from the website which was very well received. We are looking at ways to bring this to everyone. Most people were amazed at just what was available on the site and I'm sure went home to try it all out.

If you must pay by cheque please send to:
MLFHS, 17 Fortyacres Drive, Bredbury, SK6 2EZ

DO NOT send it to the office and we no longer take cash at the Helpdesk.
The Click and Collect is now available from our shop.

Best wishes
Elsie

UKBMD UPDATES

Message from Ian Hartas, Local BMD Project.

This week on one of the many facebook genealogy pages I saw that someone was looking for Sylvester Warrington. The first person to reply stated that they had found a reference to Silvester Warrington instead. I.e. spelled with an 'i' rather than a 'y'.

This made me think about the way that I had written the search code in the Local BMD Project websites and I realised that it is possible to search for both Sylvester and Silvester first names in one search.

The same software updates that I made many moons ago to allow searches to specify multiple initials instead of just a first name would also allow for this:

S[iy]lvester

i.e. if a first name has varieties that differ by only one letter, then listing the different letters within square brackets will return both Sylvester and Silvester in one search.

Note: This only applies to the forename field and only on the Local BMD Project websites.

If you want to see this in action, try it out on the Cheshire BMD births search:

<http://CheshireBMD.org.uk/birthsearch.php>

Date Range: 1915-1917

Surname: Warrington

Forename: S[iy]lvester

NORTH WEST SOUND HERITAGE

Unlocking our Sound Heritage

Thousands of cassettes, open reels, CDs and MiniDiscs are sitting in archives, museums, libraries and in people's homes all over the UK. All kinds of unique live music, radio and conversation are recorded on these tapes and discs. We've already lost many of the people captured on them. And the British Library estimates that we have fifteen years to preserve the sounds themselves.

That's why the British Library has received funding from the National Lottery Heritage Fund to establish Unlocking Our Sound Heritage, an exciting new national project to save thousands sounds which are at risk of being lost forever.

Archives+ is the hub partner for the North West region, which covers Cheshire, Cumbria, Greater Manchester, Lancashire and Merseyside. We'll be digitising around 15,000 recordings on 5,000 cassettes, reels and optical discs held all over the region here at Manchester Central Library.

This is a fascinating site providing a flavour of times gone by. If you are a sword swallower then discover what not to eat and drink before a performance!

Births, Marriages and Deaths in Scotland before 1855

by Emma Maxwell

On 1 January 1855, civil registration of births, marriages and deaths commenced in Scotland. As registration was compulsory from the start, very few events are missing. Searching these records is straightforward as they have all been indexed. You can find these records on www.scotlandspeople.gov.uk.

Top Tip: For genealogy purposes, you do not need to order a certificate. View the image online and save £££.

Due to the comprehensive nature and easy availability of post-1855 records, we rarely use church records of baptism, marriage and burial after 1855. There are occasions when they prove useful but on the whole it's cheaper and more efficient to use the civil registration records. However, before 1855, it is a completely different story.

Background to the records

In 1616 the Scottish Government, by an Act of the Privy Council, ordered that a register of persons baptised, married or buried within each parish was to be kept. This register was to include those who did not attend the parish church, the Church of Scotland.

This means that no matter what church your family attended, the place to begin your search is the Church of Scotland records. The majority of surviving registers have been indexed and the images are available to view on ScotlandsPeople. Go to 'Church Registers'. These are also known as Old Parish Registers which you may also hear referred to as OPRs.

Findmypast has also indexed these records; it's actually more than a simple index. In many cases, all the information on the original has been transcribed. As there may be some additional information on the original record, it is always best practice to look at the original where possible—certainly for your direct line ancestors.

Kirk Session Records (Church of Scotland)

Theoretically, the Church of Scotland birth, marriage and death registers were sent to the General Register Office for Scotland. In 1855 those up to 1820 were sent in with the 1820-1855 registers following a few years later. This is what forms the basis of the OPRs.

A few problems occurred with this. Some registers were a mixture of minutes, baptisms and accounts. These were often kept by the church and are part of the Kirk Session series of records. In some churches, there was no register of deaths, and all we may have is a note in the accounts showing that the mortcloth was hired. These have not been indexed but may be the only clue as to when an ancestor died.

Illegitimate children often do not appear in the baptismal register but their parents may have appeared before the Kirk Session to be disciplined and this will be recorded in the minutes. These are just a couple of the many reasons why it is good to consult Kirk Session records. These are free to browse on ScotlandsPeople so it's easier than ever to become familiar with them. For more information see our Learning Zone: <https://www.scottishindexes.com/learningkirksession.aspx>

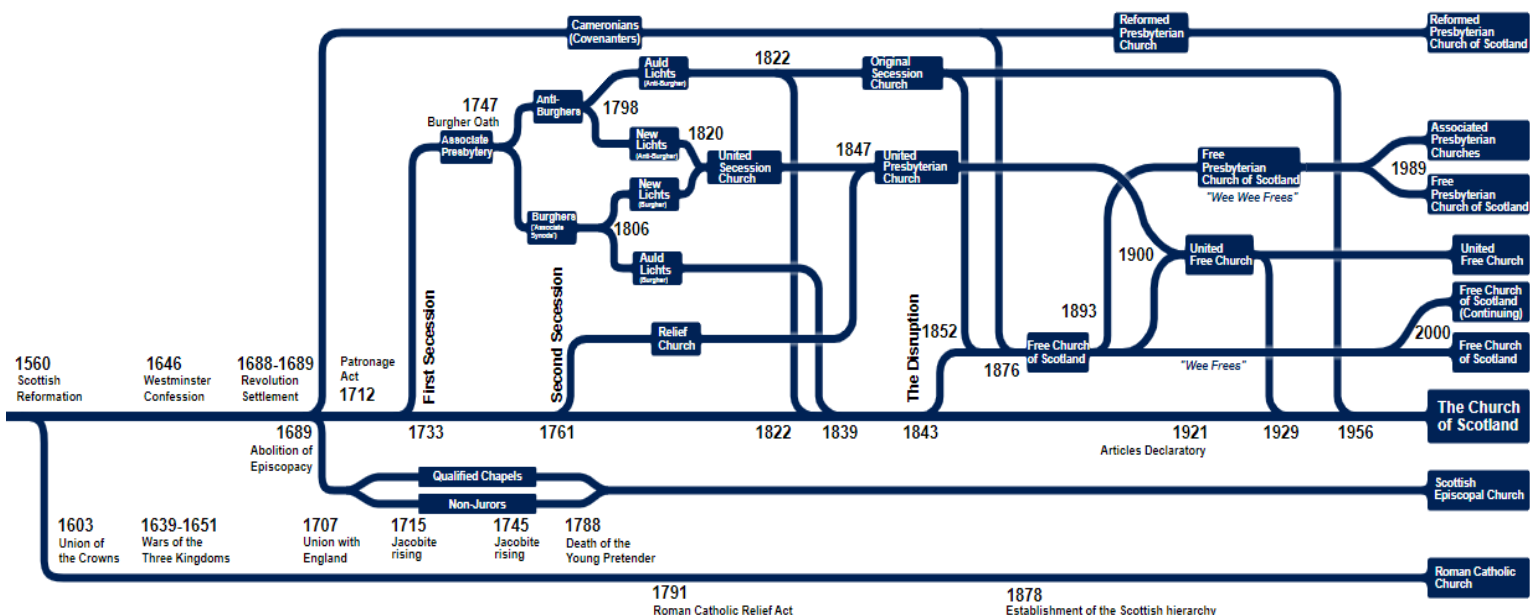

If a couple married 'irregularly', that is by declaration, not banns, they are unlikely to appear in the church register. Check the Kirk Session records for a fine, usually about the time their eldest child was born.

Non-Church of Scotland Churches

Sometimes people who did not attend the Church of Scotland were described as non-Church of Scotland. Officially there is no such word as non-church; these people are actually nonconformists or dissenters. Some people feel passionately about which term is used, however, I like the term non-Church of Scotland because it's simple and explains clearly what this article is all about. The purpose of this article is to help you access the records rather than look in depth at the history of religion in Scotland.

Free Church

In 1843, the Free Church broke away from the Church of Scotland and took around half of the church members in many parishes and nearly all in some. Many ministers became Free Church ministers, too. This period is known as 'The Disruption'. As it happened in 1843 it will affect many of us as we trace our Scottish family history and we try to make the link from the civil registration era back to the early nineteenth century when the Free Church was the largest religious denomination in Scotland.

The good news is that many surviving Free Church baptism, marriage and death records have now been indexed and are available on ScotlandsPeople. These are the records of the Free Church, most of which was eventually reunited with the Church of Scotland in 1929. If you can't find a baptism in the Church of Scotland records after 1843 this is the first place to look. Simply navigate to Church Records next to select church tick Other Churches.

This is by far the easiest way to search Free Church records. If you don't find what you are looking for it's time to search the catalogue of the National Records of Scotland (NRS). Most Free Church records are catalogued under the reference CH3 which is entitled Records of Free, United Presbyterian, United Free and Other Protestant Churches. Although many of the baptism, marriage and death registers are now online, the minutes and cash books are not. You can now compare the NRS catalogue with ScotlandsPeople (use the drop-down box under Parish/Congregation).

The good news is that ScotlandsPeople have now added most of the standard registers so searching is usually straightforward. The bad news is that the survival rate of the records is not great. As there was no requirement for the Free Church (or other churches) records to be sent to Edinburgh, many were not deposited until a much later period and sadly that allowed more time for records to be lost or damaged.

A note about Free Church records. As the flow chart shows, the denominations of Scottish churches have a complicated history. The Free Church still exists today and some of its historical records are held by the National Records of Scotland under the reference CH16. These are not the records which are on ScotlandsPeople. The records on ScotlandsPeople come from CH3, so what is this? Some Free Church parishes rejoined the Church of Scotland in 1929, these are referenced CH3. The parishes which did not rejoin have their records catalogued under CH16. Confused? I don't blame you. In fact, there can be so much confusion that not all records are what they purport to be. Ministers moved around and may have taken their notebooks with them. Be prepared for some overlap of records and don't expect everything to be neat and tidy.

Top Tip Look at a post-1855 marriage certificate to see who married the couple. If it's a Free Church minister, that's a clue that you will need to search the pre-1855 Free Church records.

ScotlandsPeople is one of the websites of the National Records of Scotland. It's their platform to provide access to a cross section of their records. It's an excellent website and they now provide access to a diverse set of records, however, it's a drop in the ocean of the records they hold. For any research purpose, it's good to be familiar with the records they hold and how to use their catalogue:

<https://catalogue.nrscotland.gov.uk/nrsonlinecatalogue>.

Here is a list of records of other religions held by the National Records of Scotland:

- ◆ CH10 Records of the Religious Society of Friends (Quakers)
- ◆ CH11 Records of the Methodist Church in Scotland
- ◆ CH12 Records of the Episcopal Church of Scotland
- ◆ CH13 United Free Church of Scotland
- ◆ CH14 Records of the United Reformed Church (including Congregational Church in Scotland)
- ◆ CH15 Unitarian Church
- ◆ CH16 Free Church of Scotland Records [the parishes that did not reunite with the Church of Scotland in 1929]
- ◆ AD9 Crown Counsel Procedure Books (including Sudden and Suspicious Deaths)
- ◆ AD12 Registers of sudden deaths, fatal accident inquiries and accidents in mines
- ◆ MH1 The Inspector of Anatomy for Scotland: Inspector's Registers

Quaker Digest

An index to the Quaker Digest of births, marriages and deaths (1647 to 1879) can be searched on scottishindexes.com (NRS reference CH10/1/64). As with all records on Scottish Indexes, the index is free to search and the full NRS reference is given.

Scottish Indexes
Home Advanced Search Record Sets Search Help Research 5

Year of Banns/Marriage	1668

Also within the CH10 series are monthly meeting minutes. As with Kirk Session records these can contain information about births, marriages and deaths. Although many of these dates were included in the Digest some entries are missing. Also, consulting the original monthly meeting minutes could give additional information. Searching the index on scottishindexes.com is the place to start your search.

Sadly, not all of the records are indexed. If you find a record in the NRS catalogue that you want to search, you can arrange to view the original for free in the NRS. If you can't visit in person, many genealogists are available to search for you.

Crown Office Sudden and Suspicious Deaths (1823-1857)

Most of the time we are looking for records of other churches but even before 1855 there are two collections of civil records which you may find useful. There are no coroners in Scotland. Instead, deaths that need to be investigated are reported to the Procurator Fiscal. The Procurator Fiscal determines if the case should be reported to the Crown Office. Some of these lead to criminal proceedings, but many do not.

On scottishindexes.com you can search Crown Office Sudden and Suspicious Deaths 1823-1857. The volumes AD12/11-12, which cover the years 1848 to 1857, give a cause of death in almost all cases. The earlier volumes AD9/1-11 do not usually give this information.

Married women are recorded with their maiden and married surnames. For example, the death of Nelly Hogg or Jamieson was transmitted to the Procurator Fiscal on 1 October 1850. Hogg is Nelly's maiden surname and Jamieson is her married surname. This makes finding and identifying women in this record set very easy.

Entries in the Crown Office Sudden and Suspicious Deaths may be the only record of a death or they may be duplicated in a parish register. Obviously, from 1855 there will also be a corresponding civil registration death certificate. Even if you have found the parish register entry, there can be an advantage to search the sudden and suspicious deaths.

For example, Robert Drew's death is recorded in the records of the Church of Scotland (reference ScotlandsPeople, OPR 644-1/67, image 0247). The entry reads as follows:

*1848 Sept[ember] 15
Rob[ert] Drew; 19 [years]; Turner; Accident; 2 6 [fee paid of two shillings and six pence].*

The entry in the Sudden and Suspicious Death records tells us more [NRS reference AD12/11 p. 4]:

*1848

Date of Receipt: Novem[ber] 29

Date of Transmitting: Novem[ber] 29

The Inspector of Anatomy for Scotland: Inspectors' Registers

The Anatomy Act of 1832 gave legal access, by holders of a licence, to obtain unclaimed corpses. The resulting registers [example below] are very useful as they include age, address, date and place of death, and date and place of burial. An index to some of these registers is available on <http://www.scottishindexes.com/deathsearch.aspx> with more coming soon.

Scottish Archive Network Catalogue (SCAN)

If you have not found the records you need at the NRS, SCAN is the next port of call.

Scottish Archive Network Online catalogue

SCAN provides a catalogue of the many records in Scottish Archives. Please note that this catalogue will soon be replaced by a new portal, Your Scottish Archives. Covid temporarily put a stop to this project but work has now resumed and the Scottish Council on Archives are working hard to release the new portal soon. For the old SCAN catalogue go to <https://catalogue.nrscotland.gov.uk/scancatalogue/> but keep an eye on <https://www.scottisharchives.org.uk/> for news of the new portal.

The National Register of Archives for Scotland (NRAS)

If you don't find what you need at the NRS or in the SCAN catalogue it's time to expand your search. The National Register of Archives for Scotland (NRAS) aims to compile a record of papers of historical significance in private hands in Scotland. Please note that this is not a comprehensive list of all surviving records but it's the next place to search:

<https://catalogue.nrscotland.gov.uk/nrasregister/>.

The NRAS do not hold the records, rather their catalogue gives you a contact person. The key here is that these are records in private hands and are not public records. When approaching a record-holder, be mindful that you are asking a favour. It may take time and expense for a private record holder to give you access and they may receive many requests. There is no obligation on a private record holder to allow access to their records—even if they name one of your ancestors.

Roman Catholic Genealogy

The Scottish Catholic Archives hold the records of our Catholic ancestors. The good news is that many of their birth, marriage and death records are now available online. Findmypast has the largest collection. Sadly, accessing a precise coverage of records on Findmypast is not always easy so it's a challenge to work out what they don't have.

ScotlandsPeople also has a collection of Catholic records. ScotlandsPeople and the Scottish Catholic Archives sometimes hold duplicate records but both seem to have some unique records. It is advisable to search both.

Final Tips

In general, before 1855 we are looking at records of baptisms. If your ancestor did not have their children baptised, there it's unlikely to find a record. Between 1783 and 1794 there was a Stamp Duty (tax) on baptisms in Scotland of three pence, as elsewhere. It's therefore not unusual to see a gap in the baptisms of children in some families. Older or younger children may appear in the register but not children born between 1783 and 1794.

Irregular marriage or Per verba de praesenti was legal in Scotland until 1939. This form of marriage was a declaration by the couple that they were married. There was no need to register the marriage or have a marriage contract. You will find a reference to some of these marriages in the Kirk Session records when the couple were disciplined by the Church. For many marriages, however, there is no record. If you want to learn more about this topic, invite genealogist Chris Paton to speak to your society. Chris delivers a fascinating presentation, Instantly Buckled for Life - Scottish Marriage Records. See <http://scottishgenes.blogspot.com/p/diary-2.html>.

There was no parish chest in Scotland to keep the registers safe; there probably should have been. Fire, mice and water damage led to loss of information. There are gaps in the records so we may simply not be able to find all birth, marriage and death records before 1855. There is a detailed list of surviving Old Parish Registers of Scotland (OPRs) available from the National Records of Scotland: <https://www.nrscotland.gov.uk/research/guides/old-parish-registers/list-of-old-parish-registers#Detailed%20list>. This can be helpful to have to hand while researching. I can quickly see, for example, that there is no surviving register of deaths for Westerkirk, Dumfriesshire. There's no point trying different spelling variations, etc., and I can't presume an ancestor died somewhere else, there is simply no register. I need to try monumental inscriptions.

Illegitimate children do not always appear in the baptism register. If your ancestor is the eldest child, check the Kirk Session records for a discipline case. Even if parents subsequently married, you may see an antenuptial (prenuptial) fornication case.

By far the hardest records to find are pre-1855 death records. Many registers have not survived and even if they do, the detail is very limited. Monumental inscriptions are a good substitute and many family history societies have worked tirelessly to index these. Many (although not all) are available on Findmypast.

Still struggling to find birth, marriage and death dates? Records such as wills, deeds and other legal records may help. Dig deeper by reading articles in our Learning Zone which cover these topics and join us for our free conferences where a variety of topics are covered.

Wedding folklore—proposing on one knee

In the Middle Ages, a man would bend down in front of the woman he adored. In religion, kneeling in front of someone is a sign of respect, loyalty and obedience.

Fast forward to today. Most men will still go down on one knee to propose. It is a show of deep emotional connection, showing you are willing to commit the rest of your life to one another.

The hen or stag do: It was only in the mid-1960s that hen parties began to grow in popularity. Stag nights emerged around the same time. These can relate to the traditional Greek feasts held to toast the groom and mark the end of youth.

The first dance is also something fairly new. Up to the 1960/70s, the newly married couple used to leave soon after the wedding feast was completed.

COMPUTER RESEARCH SESSIONS: These continue to be very popular; we help visitors with researching their family history, no matter where their family came from. Our first monthly research session is in Wisbech Library on the first Tuesday of each month from 10am-12 noon, when we can use the wonderful research resources available in the library. Our second session is on the second Monday of each month from 11am-2.30pm in the restaurant at Baytree Garden Centre in Hilgay near Downham Market. We offer help with family research to visitors to the garden centre. Please note: we are willing to go to other venues if WiFi is available.

MONTHLY MEETINGS: Our November meeting on Thursday 23rd November will be a celebration of Family History and Research. Since it is our last meeting of the year we like to enjoy participation from all members. No meeting in December. We meet again on Thursday 25th January. Our meetings are held in Wisbech Library from 7 - 9pm. on the fourth Thursday of the month. Everyone welcome. Members free, visitors a donation of at least £2.

OUR SPEAKERS are available to attend groups and clubs to give talks in the local area. The talks offered include: The Fun of Family History about a long journey by land, air and sea to find her roots. My Naughty Great Aunt Eliza unravelling a story of lies and deceit. The Ups and Downs of Being a Magistrate a real life experience. The Sad Tale of the Blacksmith's Family the story of a great-great-grandfather. We're going down the pub: a "local" history.

FAMILY HISTORY BOOKS

Family History Books (FHB) is an online bookshop and publisher; it is part of the Family History Federation and the aim is to provide a service to the genealogical community. Family History Books offers a range of relevant titles relating to family history research.

FHB welcomes work from new or existing authors that will appeal to family historians, and in some cases also local and social historians, too. Please note that "family histories" or fictional material cannot be accepted.

The latest title is Introducing Nonconformist Records. This popular title offers guidance to researchers on all things nonconformity.

Plus, FHB has FamilyTree DNA kits on sale at favourable rates for both autosomal and Y-tests.

In addition to its online shop FHB can also be found at major live family history events around the country. Come and visit us next year and see all the latest titles available. The stall is always very popular!

Happy browsing!
